BRIEF HISTORY OF AMU SCHOOLS

1. S.T.S. School (Minto Circle):

The Aligarh Muslim University was established by an Act of Parliament in 1920 from the erstwhile MAO College established by Sir Syed Ahmad Khan in 1877. The School which was then known as Muslim University High School was later named Minto Circle after Lord Minto, the Viceroy of India.

The School was given the new name of S.T. High School in 1966 after the name of Syedna Tahir Saifuddin, the then Chancellor of the Aligarh Muslim University. At present the School is known as S.T.S School. The School is imparting education to the students from Class I to XII. For students from outside Aligarh, the School maintains four hostels within the campus with accommodation for nearly 240 students. Presently near about 2000 students are studying here. Hostel facilities are available for students of Class VI to Class X only.

The School upholds high moral and traditional values which essentially make the Aligarh Muslim University an institution of academic distinction with a difference and unique culture. The students are supervised in their classroom, hostel and playground. It is compulsory for all students to be disciplined, observe good behavior and to abide by the laid down rules and regulations.

Since its inception the school has maintained its National Character. The alumni of this School have been achieving distinction in various fields and are playing pivotal role in social, political and cultural life not only at National level but across the globe. Efforts have been made to make S.T.S. School an institution of high standards for perpetual learning and dissemination of knowledge. The School has a well-equipped library, playground for outdoor games and a Common Room. The School also has a well- developed Computer Laboratory and other facilities to keep the students abreast with the latest technological developments.

The School has been generally catering the educational needs of the under privileged and the lower middle class of the society, particularly the Aligarh City.

The School is now named as AMU City School which imparts education from Class VI to XII. At present there are approximately 1500 students on its rolls. Initially the school was established with the aim to teach Urdu and impart lessons in the recitation of the Quranul Majeed to the children of the Grade IV employees of the University as well as educationally downtrodden sections of the Muslim Community residing in around the AMU campus. The Madarsa was shifted to a big room near Sir Syed Hall in 1950. The present building of the Girls Section near the Union Hall was built by the then Vice Chancellor Dr. Zakir Husain. In 1963 the Madarsa became a primary School and started imparting lesson up to Class V. Professor Abul Baseer Khan, a senior Professor in Zoology Department, having high reputation among the teachers and students substantially donated for the development of the School, and in 1988 the school was named as Abdul Baseer Khan Union School, and was upgraded to Junior High School.
